

39% OF UK BUSINESSES EXPERIENCED A CYBER-ATTACK IN THE PAST 12 MONTHS, AND 31% OF THESE BUSINESSES ESTIMATED THAT THEY WERE ATTACKED AT LEAST ONCE A WEEK*.

It's essential that you are aware of the dangers of potential cyber-attacks and how you can protect yourself, your clients and your livelihood.

We are still seeing phishing, ransomware and hacking attacks across the UK, with the National Cyber Security Centre now calling on businesses in the UK to bolster their online defences, following the invasion of Ukraine.

The potential dangers of being uninsured following a cyber incident:

- Client data is stolen or deleted from local systems
- Systems are shut down, meaning no access to programmes, files or data
- Disruption to day-to-day activities, including appointment cancellations
- Loss of revenue
- Business interruption following the process to get you back to where it was before the incident

Do you know what to do in the event of a cyber-attack?

If your answer is no, you may benefit from a cyber insurance policy, not only will a cyber policy potentially pay for any ransom or fine caused by a data breach, but as cyber experts, they can also take the problem off your hands and actively work to resolve the problem for you.
